TOUR NOTES

Specialist, Enthusiast and Adventurer levels of touring. You may already have noticed that some of our Churchill polar bear programs are categorized as Specialist, Enthusiast or Adventurer. But what do the categories mean? Well, here's the low down. Confused as to what level of tour best suits your needs? Just ask us and we'll go through the various tour options and dates to find the best fit.

- Adventurer level tours have the largest group size and limited guiding, so have the lowest prices. If you are looking for the most economical tour, then an Adventurer level tour is for you.
- Specialist and Enthusiast level tours offer smaller group sizes and include an interpretive guide or photography expert.
- If you have a bit bigger budget and want a smaller group size with an interpretive guide, then an Enthusiast level tour would be the best choice.
- The Specialist tours require the biggest budget and focuses (pardon the pun) on specific interests such as photography, with an expert guide along.
- Certain trips may be designated as a Conservation Journey - these trips take you deep into the heart of polar bear country, the Churchill Wildlife Management Area, where the most studied population of polar bears in the world are found during the autumn months preceding the Hudson Bay freeze-up. The Tundra Buggy® Lodge is our base for the adventure, which includes three full-days on the tundra, and a behind-the-scenes glimpse of Buggy One, a mobile broadcast and research station that also serves as operation central for the live polar bear cams operated by Polar Bears International, explore.org and Frontiers North Adventures. Evenings feature educational seminars about polar bear habitat, species conservation and how climate change is impacting polar bear habitat.
